

REED

Ex-Speaker Com- bative Till Last

End Came Early Sunday Morning

AFTER FEW DAYS ILLNESS IN WASHINGTON.

SKETCH OF HIS PUBLIC CAREER

Twenty Years in Congress Followed by Law Practice in New York—Defeated McKinley.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The House adjourned today at 12:15 out of respect to the late Thomas B. Reed. In the resolutions which will be spread on the House records will appear this eulogy: "A distinguished statesman, a lofty patriot, a cultured scholar, an incisive writer, a unique orator, an unmatched debater, a master of logic, wit and satire, the most famous of the world's parliamentarians."

Boston, Dec. 8.—The special train bearing the body of ex-Speaker Reed and the party accompanying it, arrived this morning and was transferred around the city to the tracks of the Boston and Maine railroad at Somerville. It left Somerville for Portland this morning.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Ex-Speaker T. B. Reed was combative to the last. Even when his mind was partly overclouded, he would argue with his physicians in dignified judicial terms, at times approaching eloquence. He was intransigent to a degree that seriously interfered with the work of his nurses. Mrs. Reed alone seemed to be able to bend his will to the wishes of those attending him. Against every new suggestion of the doctors he would protest in a most vigorous manner.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Friends of ex-Speaker T. B. Reed were encouraged by Saturday afternoon's bulletin which was wired to the Advocate but in the evening Mr. Reed's condition took a decided turn for the worse and he died at 12:10 a. m. Sunday. Uraemic symptoms became pronounced Saturday night.

Thomas Brackett Reed was born in Portland, Maine, October 18, 1839, a descendant, through his mother, of George Cleve, who, 200 years before, built the first white man's habitation in the territory now included in that city. His immediate ancestors were not noted for wealth or great prominence, nor were the future statesman's early years remarkable for any display of precocious brilliancy.

He was a passably fair student at the grammar schools of his native city, and his first two years at Bowdoin College gave him the reputation of being an indolent, careless young man of good native sense and vigorous personality. In his junior year, however, he awoke to a serious realization of his opportunities, devoted himself sedulously to his studies and graduated third in his class—that of 60. In fact, his college course is particularly commendable because he had to earn his tuition and support himself because of parent's poverty.

Reed then taught school a few years, earning at first "$20 a month and boarding around." This income increased slightly in time, but in 1863 he concluded that a young man's opportunity was better out West, so he went to California.

ture. The nomination was unsolicited and he knew nothing of it until the fact was published in the papers. He was elected, however, and served two years, when he was sent to the State Senate. In 1870 he became Attorney General of the state, serving two years, and from this position became City Solicitor of Portland.

In 1876 he was nominated for Congress, elected, and in 1877 his 22 years of service in the House of Representatives began.

Even in his first term he made a deep impression upon his colleagues and won a reputation for forceful, aggressive oratory by his first speech in opposition to a bill to remunerate William and Mary's College of Virginia, for damages done by Union soldiers during the war. In the following Congress he became even more prominent because of his successful opposition to a proposal to repose in the hands of the Speaker of the House just those powers he afterward exercised when he himself was elected to the chair.

He was an unsuccessful candidate for the Speakership in the Forty-seventh Congress, but in 1889 he defeated the late President William McKinley, for the position, and not only became one of the most prominent personages in the public eye, but the most formidable figure in national legislation.

The party in power in the Fifty-first Congress had a small, but not a "working," majority, and could not carry measures to which the opposition objected. It was then that he "counted the quorum." This facilitated legislation, but it aroused bitter antagonism, and won for the Speaker the title "Czar" Reed. His career from that time is familiar to all readers.

LAWYER STEELE AND HUGHES TO STAND TRIAL.

Columbus, Dec. 8.—United States Judge Thompson today overruled the demurrers to the indictments and ordered Attorneys Thomas E. Steele and Ivor Hughes to trial this afternoon on the charges of using the United States mail to defraud and with them will be tried Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller. All are accused of attempting to blackmail prominent Columbus citizens.

DAILY Earthquakes Felt In Utah --People Becoming Alarmed.

Salt Lake, Utah, Dec. 8.—Since November 17, when an earthquake shook up Southern Utah and as far north as Salt Lake, there have been daily shocks felt in the extreme southeastern portion of the State. According to advices received from Pine Valley, a hamlet in the mountains of Washington county, not a day has passed since that date that at least one earthquake shock was not felt, and serious alarm is being felt for the safety of the place.

Every chimney in the town has been badly cracked or demolished. At Pinto the shocks have been so severe that the public school has been abandoned for several days. About 15 miles south are five or six old craters and continuance of the earthquake shocks has strengthened the belief that there has been a fresh outbreak of volcanic activity in the mountains of that region.

CARLOS LEAVES ENGLAND.

London, Dec. 8.—King Carlos of Portugal who has been visiting King Edward for a fortnight past, left London for home today.

PRINCESS ROBBED.

Paris, Dec. 8.—The Princess Chimay, who obtained considerable notoriety four years ago by eloping with the Sympy musician Janos Rigo, has been robbed of 10,000 francs worth of jewelry. The thief is Rigo's Hindoo servant, Amiky.

Black Island, the substance which is attracting scientific interest because of the radioactive metal it contains, is found in Cornwall and Saxony, and is a mineral made up of 84.12 percent of oxide of uranium and a half of black oxide of iron, galena and silica.

CONSUL NAST

Famous Cartoonist of Boss Tweed Days Died of a Fever on Sunday in Ecuador.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Dec. 8.—Consul General Thomas Nast died Sunday at noon after three days' illness from yellow fever.

The remains were interred at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The funeral was attended by the governor, the consular corps, the American colony and by many friends.

The coffin was wrapped in the Stars and Stripes. The British consul recited a prayer in the cemetery.

The death of Mr. Nast is deeply lamented by the natives, who held him in high esteem.

Thomas Nast was appointed consul general at Guayaquil this year, leaving New York for his post July 1. He was born in Landau, Bavaria, Sept. 27, 1840, and came with his parents to the United States six years later. As a caricaturist and cartoonist he became famous.

Justice Holmes.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Oliver Wendell Holmes, of Massachusetts, was sworn in as a member of the supreme court of the United States today. He succeeds the late Justice Gray.

BEAT HUSBAND

AT LAWSUIT AND WOMAN BLOOD- IED HIS NOSE.

Promptly Paying the Fine of $25 Mrs. Kaskie Declared It's Worth the Price.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—When Peter Kaskie finished telling Judge Tuley what a much-abused husband he was, and as he stepped down from the stand, Frau Kaskie rose up in her might and to the astonishment of Court and bailiffs, "handed him one."

The blow landed on Kaskie's nose. He staggered and then a carmine stream came from his proboscis. The woman was arrested. The Court, however, allowed her to go on the stand. She produced witnesses and records to show Kaskie was entirely mistaken. The Judge dismissed Herr Kaskie's plea for divorce, but made Frau Kaskie give up $25 for her dexterity with her fist.

WILHELMINA

Plans American Trip Next Year With Husband—First Reigning Mon- arch to Come.

Amsterdam, Dec. 8.—Queen Wilhelmina and her husband, Prince Henry, it is reported are to visit the United States next year.

The Queen and Prince Henry will first proceed in a Dutch man-of-war by way of the Suez Canal to the Dutch colonies in the East Indies.

Thence the royal pair will proceed to San Francisco, will cross the continent, and visit points of interest on the way.

From New York they will proceed to Washington and pay their respects to President Roosevelt.

It is probable that they will travel as the Duke and Duchess of Mecklenburg.

Another Dutch man of war will await them in New York to take them home.

She will be the first reigning monarch of Europe to visit the United States. The measure of her reception therefore will be watched with eager interest.

King Edward VII. of England was only the first monarch when he visited America.

Dom Pedro of Brazil was an Emperor in effect when he went to see the Centennial exposition at Philadelphia. Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii was deposed on the occasion of her visit to America.

The King Wilhelm II. and Kaiser Leopold II. have talked of going to see the great land beyond the Atlantic. So Queen Wilhelmina has made all of her arrangements for the new monarch, and the world is assured.

SCHEME

To Defraud Elec- tric Light Co.

Worked Successfully In Cleveland.

WORKMEN WIRED AROUND THE METERS.

ENOUGH CURRENT LET THROUGH

To Move Meter Slightly—Company Fi- nally Discovered How Fraud Was Worked.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 8.—"Give me $5 and I will fix your electric light wires so that your electricity bill will be reduced one half."

The above tempting argument used with success in various parts of the city was the means of causing a big financial loss to the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company recently. It represented a swindle of the worst sort and just how long it had been in operation is not known. A few persons who were dependent upon electricity for illuminating purpose having no idea that a swindle was being perpetrated, allowed the smooth strangers to work their game.

The attempt to decrease the cost of lighting in this way was invariably successful. The stranger would turn on all the lights in the store and then show the record made by the meter. They would then turn off the current, fuss with the wires a few minutes, and turn on the current again. The decrease in the amount of electricity registered was so apparent in every case that the merchants paid the fee without further question.

The officials of the illuminating company noticed a falling off in receipts that could not be accounted for. An investigation was made and the inspectors soon discovered the scheme to defraud the company.

The game was to wire around the meter, leaving just a little electricity to leak into the meter and make it record a small amount.

ULTIMATUM IS SENT TO VENEZUELA.

London, Dec. 8.—In the house of commons today Premier Balfour announced that an ultimatum had been sent to Venezuela. Should an unsatisfactory reply be received, he continued, the British and German governments would take measures to enforce their claims.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Asheville, N. C., Dec. 8.—News reached here this morning of the cremation of two children near the Tennessee border. The mother locked the children in the house and went away. Some time later the house was discovered to be in flames and before they could be rescued both children and mother and six years, were burned to death.

Indiana Oil.

Portland, Ind., Dec. 8.—All year months of the present year show the output of oil wells in the Indiana field to be 749,124 barrels, with a valuation of $8,074,233.55 to operators and farmers. During the same period the shipment was 10,650,471 barrels worth $8,074,233.55.

Probably the largest number of United States soldiers recently sent for a campaign by W. A. Hunter, of this city, was sent to the coast of Guatemala, where it is made that Godfrey Hunter, the son of the late Wm. Fitzgerald in 1862, was killed and cost nearly $100,000.

BY PHONE

Farmer Was Fined for Drunkenness and Sent the Money by the Rural Free Delivery Route.

Washington, Ind., Dec. 8.—Town Marshal Daniel Chambers, of Elmore, was called to the telephone by John Ketchum, a farmer who lives eight miles away.

"Have you a warrant for me?" asked Ketchum.

"I have," replied the officer.

"Will you please read it to me?" asked Ketchum.

The officer did as requested and then added: "You will please consider yourself under arrest."

"Certainly, and I want to plead guilty to the charge of intoxication," said the farmer.

The officer called Justice Hastings to the phone and after a short conversation with Ketchum the latter entered a plea of guilty, and was fine one cent and costs.

"I'll send the amount to you by the rural mail route carrier," said Ketchum.

"That's all right, John," replied the "Squire," and a few hours later he wrote the word "paid" on his docket.

J. P. MORGAN

BECOMES UNCROWNED KING OF COAL TRADE.

The Big Financier Has Reached Out for the Anthracite Properties Worth Owning.

New York, Dec. 8.—J. Pierpont Morgan's new coal trust will rival the Northern Securities company. It is to be wholly as prodigious in scope, and in some respects will outdo it. In planning the big deal the great financier has reached out for all the anthracite properties in the country worth owning and nine coal-carrying roads.

The capital to be represented will be very nearly $400,000,000, and all the workings of the concern on a mammoth scale. Mr. Morgan has already chosen his lieutenants, and is ready to pay down $145,000,000 for the mines of the independent operators. He will control the huge combine as absolutely as other projects he handles and will be the real coal king of the United States.

It is expected that the details of the anthracite deal will soon be told, together with the announcement that the independents have accepted Morgan's price for their property.

President George F. Baer of the Reading railroad, also head of the New York Central, whose refusal to accept the presidency of the Lehigh Valley put Mr. Thomas there, has promised J. P. Morgan to become head of the holding company when the anthracite coal road trust is carried through. This statement was made positively by competent authority. Mr. Morgan wanted Mr. Baer to assume the presidency of the Lehigh Valley. There were two things in the way: first, Mr. Baer's refusal to take on any greater burden, and the lesser probability of a law which stood in the way. Mr. Baer is reported to have said to Mr. Morgan:

"I cannot accept the presidency of the Lehigh Valley because I now carry as great a burden as president of two operating roads as I can stand. When you want me to become president of a general corporation to control all the anthracite coal roads I shall be glad to accept, but I do not care to direct the individual operations of any road, other than those I now have in charge."

It is on the distinct understanding that Mr. Baer shall become the head of the new combine of coal roads being evolved.

Shot In Self-Defense.

London, Ky., Dec. 8.—In a letter received from James G. Doherty, Secretary of the United States Legation in Guatemala, it is stated that a man named Wm. Fitzgerald in 1862 was killed and cost nearly $100,000.

the shots in self defense, after his face has been slapped. Mr. Bailey states further that Fitzgerald snapped a pistol in Hunter's face, precipitating the tragedy. The letter declares that Fitzgerald attacked Hunter while the latter was sitting quietly in the plaza not looking for any danger or trouble. The letter is dated November 21.

Steamer Ashore.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The superintendent of the life saving service here has received the following dispatch from the station at Cape Hatteras: "Large steamer, black funnel, white band, reported ashore six miles south of Hatteras inlet. The Hatteras life saving crew has gone to her assistance."

Carrying Mail.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Contracts for carrying mails between the postoffices and depots in Ohio cities for four years has been awarded by the post-office department as follows: Akron, P. T. McCourt; Canton, G. Y. Zeigler; Chillicothe, G. F. Turper; Mansfield, G. W. Furney; Sandusky, L. C. Ocker; Toledo, M. J. Clark; Zanesville, J. H. Crooks; Springfield, J. H. The number was increased to 40 a few minutes later. At the conclusion of the routine morning business the immigration bill upon motion of Mr. Penrose, was taken up.

A COLD WAVE NOW COMING THIS WAY.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The weather bureau announces that there will be a cold wave tonight in the upper Ohio Valley, the lower lake region and the greater portion of the Atlantic states with temperatures ranging from 10 to 15 degrees above zero.

COLOSSAL FRAUD.

Madrid, Dec. 8.—A colossal fraud which was being operated among the poor of Madrid was exposed today. It has been discovered that fifty "friendly" societies which had hundreds of thousands of poor on their roll for medical aid, etc., were stealing the hard earned money of these people from them. The modus operandi of these so-called benefit societies was to collect fees of from three to five pesetas per month from their clients, promising good medical treatment and burial in case of death. Instead of this, when called on for medical assistance the societies would send unqualified students and cheap druggists. As a result many deaths are believed to have occurred. Several arrests have been made and it is expected that others will follow.

ZERO IN CHICAGO COAL SHORTAGE.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—With a marked coal shortage this city is now in the grip of zero weather and there is much suffering. Dozens of houses of several rooms have only one fire and one bucket of coal or a bundle of wood to last several days.

KNOX IS ILL.

Express letters and parcels are now carried by cyclists in Berlin.

CASH

Bothered Gist So He Gave It Away

Distributed $40,000 In Gold Among Poor

FRIENDS PESTERED HIM ABOUT A RECENT LEGACY

AND HE SETTLED THE MATTER

By Drawing Out Money and Freely Handing it Out to the "Just and Unjust."

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 8.—Ben W. Gist, of Falls City, Neb., was happy until an uncle died and left him $40,000. He was a favorite nephew and was wealthy before he received the legacy. Some of the other nephews and nieces said he ought to divide the $40,000 so that all would have a share. To this he agreed.

Family conferences were held, but no plans for division found unanimous endorsement. Jim wanted more than Bill and Kate thought she was entitled to more than either. Relatives called on young Gist at all hours of the day and night. His life was made a burden. He grew melancholy and irritable.

Last week he took the $40,000 out of a Falls City bank and deposited it in a bank in this city. The next day he drove to the bank, drew a check for $5,000 and asked the cashier to give it to him in gold.

"I shall draw out my entire deposit during the next few days," he said, "and I shall want all of it in gold."

With the sacks of money in the carriage beside him Gist went into the district where the poor live and distributed $20 gold pieces among them. To give himself courage he took several drinks, but at no time during the seven days he was sowing gold pieces did he become intoxicated.

When he met school children in the streets he gave them gold pieces. Old men and women profited by his liberality and were made comfortable for many months to come by his gifts.

Gist gave away $5,000 the first afternoon and followed it up the next day by giving away a larger sum. He gave money alike to the deserving and to the undeserving, "to the just and unjust" as he expressed it. His one desire was to get rid of the $40,000. He succeeded in giving it all away.

Two of his uncles came to the city at once and the young man was taken into court, where one of the uncles was appointed guardian for him. An effort was made to recover the money Gist had thrown away, but very little of it could be found. Gist is now back on the farm at Falls City, sane and happy.

Guests Ate Polecats.

Columbus, O., Dec. 8.—Roast polecat was the piece de resistance at a banquet served in Wahlendmeier's restaurant in this city last night. The host was P. I. Miller, a painter, and he kept his guests ignorant of the nature of what they were eating until it was too late to profit by the information.

CARNEGIE

Presents Palace to His Daughter as a Christmas Gift—It's Worth $2,500,000.

New York, Dec. 8.—Perhaps the most valuable Christmas gift made to a child this year is that of Andrew Carnegie to his little daughter, Margaret. He has deeded his magnificent $2,500,000 palace on 91st street to the girl and is coming to America to personally present it to its new mistress on Christmas day. Her father simply remains its trustee and little Margaret will be absolute mistress.

Quails are now said to be extinct in Ireland, where they were formerly to be found in great numbers.

FRENCH TITLES TO BE NIL.

A bill has been introduced in the French Chamber of Deputies designed to do away with all titles of nobility. It is predicted that the measure will pass. And it is to be hoped that it will. So long as the monarchical spirit is kept alive by the recognition of titles granted by kings and emperors no long will France fall in with a republic.

The old Bourbon spirit is still strong in France, and it is responsible for the lack of progress that is so noticeable in many respects. The recognition of titles has its influence in each generation and enables a shoddy nobility to pose in what is supposed to be a country of equal rights. But with the passing of titles there will be a new France and a better one.

As for America, we won't miss the French titles. Our helmsmen can still find plenty of titled rakes in other European countries.

DEWEY WITHIN HAILING AND STRIKING DISTANCE.

(Columbus Citizen.)

No prophet can foretell the complications that may arise from the present complications in Venezuela. With a descent of English and German warships upon the South American coast probable, however, Americans have a consoling reflection in the fact that Admiral Dewey is not far from their objective point and is in command of one of the most powerful fleets ever assembled in any waters. The best battleships and cruisers in the United States navy are at present mobilized in the Caribbean sea—a force far more formidable and under a stronger hand than the combined British and German vessels destined to the Venezuelan coast, among which there is not a single battleship.

The national administration shows no disposition to enforce the Monroe doctrine now or at any future time. Indeed, it could hardly do so in a formal enunciation, as long as the Philippine yoke hangs about the neck of the government. But a contingency might arise in which one commander in South American waters might find it necessary to do something that would promptly revive the recollection of that doctrine, if nothing more. Admiral Dewey, a diplomat as well as a sailor, is the man to do it; and if he cuts the cable as he did in Manila bay, there may be some development; that will prove decidedly interesting to the time the news reaches Washington.

SOMETHING FOR EACH ONE.

The good St. Nick we have something for each member of the family. Preparations are being made for one of the biggest Christmas trade in our history. We have the goods—and the salespeople and the low prices to make our anticipations good.

CAST ADRIFT
IN THE PACIFIC

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]
We were, as near as I can remember, in the latitude of Midway Island, in the Pacific, and all was going well with the bark Harvest Home when we picked up a sailor named Williams, who was drifting about in a ship's yawl. He told a story of shipwreck and suffering which we afterward came to know was utterly false, and after a couple of days he was put in my watch and entered as an extra hand.

Williams had no sooner got among the men than he began telling of a great treasure buried on one of the Kuril Islands. Talk treasure to a sailor and you can bring him to mutiny. The amount of money was given at several million dollars, and Williams claimed to be able to locate the exact spot. It probably never occurred to one of the men to ask why he didn't go to the captain with his story and try to arrange for the removal of the treasure, but if it did he had no answer at hand. He proposed taking possession of the bark, sailing her to the treasure island, securing the great wealth and then using her to get to England. As to the officers and such men as would not join, they were to be cast adrift in midocean to take their chances. We had a cargo valued at $125,000, and I think the man's game was to peddle it out among the Marine, Caroline and Mar-hill Islands, get what he could and then look out for himself.

So quietly did he do his work among the crew that not the slightest hint of what was going on was wafted aft. He enlisted eight of the men in his cause, and on the seventh day of his coming aboard and while the captain and I were eating dinner the climax came. The second mate was seized, bound and gagged, and an alarm was raised that he had fallen overboard. Both of us rushed from the cabin, to be pounced upon and made prisoners. It was a surprise all around, and no insolence was offered any of us. When Captain Holt demanded an explanation, Williams promptly enlightened him. He said:

"We are in possession of the bark. We are going after a great treasure, which is to be equally divided between man and man. It was no use to talk to you, for you would have scoffed at my story. It was agreed that none of you should be hurt, and we have kept to the agreement."

"What do you intend to do with us?"
"Send you adrift within an hour."
"Where is your treasure island?"
"I will not tell you."
"If you really know of a buried treasure, why not let us sail the ship there and share with you?"
"Because that would mean less money for the rest of us."
The captain appealed to the men, declaring that Williams had no real knowledge of a treasure and would lead them a wild goose chase, and offered to overlook what had happened if they would return to duty. The feeling of the crew was expressed by the old boatswain, who took off his cap and stood in humble attitude as he said:

"Captain Holt, we hev nuthin' ag'in ye nor the mates, but here's a chance fur every man of us to git rich for life, and we feels as if we must take it."

There was more argument, but the men were stubborn. Those who had refused to join in the plot now came forward and gave in their allegiance to Williams, and preparations were begun for casting us adrift. One of the quarter boats was hoisted out, and in it were stowed water and provisions sufficient to last three of us a fortnight. We were allowed a must and a sail, but neither chart nor compass.

We had made 350 miles to the east and were having fair weather when we made a grewsome discovery. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon we sighted a strange object only a point or two off our course, and, running down to it, we found our old bark floating keel upward, with two of her masts and a great mass of wreckage surrounding her. There was but little sea on, and we scrambled upon the bark's bottom. We had a faint hope that if sound below she might be righted, especially if we sighted a craft which would give us assistance. She had probably been in that position for three or four days at the least, but there was still sufficient air to buoy her up. I had not yet walked her length when I heard a knocking, followed by faint shouts. The captain came aboard to see what he could make of it, and it was not long before we were satisfied that at least two men were imprisoned in the cabin. By lying down and placing our ears to the copper sheathing we could make out that they knew some one had boarded the bark, and they appealed to us to cut a hole through which they could escape. We had neither ax nor hatchet, but if we had been fully equipped the chances would have been against us. It was a spot where no one could stand upright to use an ax, and every fifth or sixth wave rose right over it.

We believed one of the imprisoned men to be Williams and the other the boatswain. We could catch their words pretty plainly, but they seemed unable to make out our replies. We could do nothing for them, but decided to remain by the wreck for a day or two in hope of aid from some craft. At sunset the wind died away, and the night was without a zephyr. At sunrise next morning the first object our eyes lighted on was an English tramp steamer bound from New York to Japan with coal oil and close aboard of us. We looked for our wreck, but it had disappeared. The minimalist lay floating about, but the hull and its tangle and its prisoners had gone to the bottom of the sea.

BUILT HOUSE

ON WROBLOT AND MUST NOW MOVE OUT.

Owner of the Lot Has Served Notice on Thomas Hollowood Demanding Possession.

Washington, Pa., Dec. 8.—There is serious mixup at Donora, this county, over one man building a handsome residence on property which he thought was his own, but which, it developed later, was owned by another man.

Some time ago Thomas Hollowood purchased a lot at the latter place, and on the property erected a fine house which cost him over $10,000. It has since developed that the lot on which the building was erected was not his own, but an adjoining one, owned by James Wilson of Dawson, Fayette county.

When the mistake was discovered Hollowood offered to exchange, with a considerable sum additional, but Wilson refused. Hollowood offered then to purchase the other lot, but Wilson placed an enormous price on it and Hollowood was unable to buy. Wilson says that Hollowood must vacate and has served papers on the latter forbidding him to move the building or take possession of it.

SCHWAB'S $10,000 PIANO.

Costly Instrument Being Made For the Steel Manufacturer.

There is being finished in a Roxbury factory one of the most expensive and elaborate pianos ever constructed in the United States for Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, says a Boston special to the New York Times. The price is $10,000, the highest ever paid for a piano by an American.

The Schwab piano is a marvelous creation of mechanical and artistic forces. It is a middle sized grand of Louis XVI. design. The case is gilded throughout and ornately decorated with leaves and foliage of Watteau pattern. It is 8 feet 7 inches long, 5 feet 2 inches extreme width and weighs 1,150 pounds.

Indian Beadwork Revived.

The Catholic Indian association of Canada is making arrangements to revive the bead industry among the Caughnawaga Indians, says the New York Tribune. The women will be taught to adapt their ancient skill, which they are in great danger of losing, to modern uses, such as the making of belts, purses, cardcases, etc., and it is believed that their handicraft will find a ready sale. The Caughnawagas are a peculiarly interesting people and are known in early Canadian history as the "praying Indians." Their lives were compared at that time to those of the primitive Christians, and among them lived the famous Indian saint Kateri Tekakwitha.

Optional of Course.

"Sir," exclaimed the offended bridegroom, "it is customary for the clergyman to kiss the bride."

"Well, er—I reckon you're right about that," replied the ecclesiastical functionary, with another glance at the bride's face, "but I believe that is attached as a privilege and not—as is a penalty."—Baltimore News.

The Title.

"How in the world did St. Slocum get the title of 'Hon.'?" asked the stranger.

"Well," said the village philosopher, "we ain't hardly sure whether the 'Hon.' means 'honorary' or not, but I guess it fits him."—Baltimore Herald.

Bowser With A Kodak
He Acquires a Passion For Autumn Views and Goes Out For Snapshots

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]
MR. BOWSER didn't rush for his hat and overcoat and hustle for the street car when he had finished breakfast the other morning. On the contrary, he lit a cigar, took a walk in the back yard, and when Mrs. Bowser had become properly curious and anxious he explained:

"I'm going to take a day off in the country, and so there's no hurry. At odd hours during the last month I've been learning how to use a kodak, and my scheme is to take a set of autumn pictures for a prize contest."

"If you want to go out into the country to stroll about for the day, it will find the stable, made his appearance and demanded:

"Now, then, what is all this about? You stop right where you are or there'll be a row!"

"I was simply getting ready to take a picture of the old horse and the stable," explained Mr. Bowser. "Then you needn't go any farther. There's been more'n a hundred of your kind along here this year, and they've trampled down my crops, stole my fruit and dirtied with my gals, and I haven't got a cent out of it. If you don't want to pay $10 for a picture, you can git."

Mr. Bowser got. He wanted to have a row over it, but the farmer had a club in his hand and looked as if he wouldn't hesitate to swipe a kodak off the face of the earth.

In the next field, which belonged to another farm, was a cow under a tree. It was an autumn cow and an autumn tree, and, properly framed, would make a back parlor picture to be proud of. The pose of both cow and tree was all that could be desired by the most exacting artist. Mr. Bowser got right to work. So did the farmer and his son, who were putting around the barn. They came down on a run. The old man shrilly demanded to know who had given the kodak permission to come squinting around that field.

"I simply wanted a picture of the cow and tree," was explained.

"Well, you can't have it. A fellow who looked just like you come along here last week and squinted around for pictures, and when he had gone I missed a plow and a drag. Don't be two minits gittin' out of here!"

Mr. Bowser's first impulse was to fight, but he reflected that autumn views awaited him farther on, so he swallowed his indignation and climbed the fence.

At the back of another farmhouse stood a giant oak whose leaves had turned to gold, and beneath its spreading branches reposed seven hogs. They had eaten their fill of acorns and gone to sleep. Any artist with half an eye could see that it was the opportunity of a lifetime to combine autumn scenery and sugar cured hams in one picture. Mr. Bowser chuckled with satisfaction as he set up his shooter. There was only one thing more. The pose of one of the hogs was a little off and must be improved. Very quietly the artist went forward and bestowed a kick where it would do the most good. The waterword of that drove of hogs was, "If you tickle one, you kick all." The first porker had no sooner scrambled up with a grunt of inquiry than the other six followed suit. No hog could make out just what was going on, but all decided to move on and think it

THEY MOVED IN MR. BOWSER'S DIRECTION.

I fight with a farmer? On the contrary, three or four of them will probably ask me to dinner. You and the cat needn't wait supper."

Half an hour later he was off, picking up his kodak at the corner grocery as he went.

Mr. Bowser's adventures began early. He scarcely had got seated in a suburban car when an oldish man who sat alongside of him set his jaw and remarked:

"I thought it was about time for another of you fellows to come along, and I want to warn you right here and now that if you come squinting around my place I'll jump on to your neck. The last kodak idiot brought out a picture of my old woman standing on her head and sold it to a sideshow."

"I'm not taking pictures of jackasses," replied Mr. Bowser as he fired up.

"Don't you call me names, you old hairless rhinoceros!"

"And don't you flourish your fist before my nose or I'll break you in two!"

The passengers separated them, and they rode to the end of the line without further having been committed. There was an autumn view all ready for the kodaker. A poor old horse, who had lived his years and was waiting for the grim specter to clutch his throat, stood looking out the door of a tumble-down log stable. The kodak was set up and focused, but just as the button was about to be pressed a farmer, who was pulling trips behind the stable, made his appearance and demanded:

"Now, then, what is all this about? You stop right where you are or there'll be a row!"

"I was simply getting ready to take a picture of the old horse and the stable," explained Mr. Bowser. "Then you needn't go any farther. There's been more'n a hundred of your kind along here this year, and they've trampled down my crops, stole my fruit and dirtied with my gals, and I haven't got a cent out of it. LODGE OF SORROW

Impressive Ceremony at Memorial Services of Newark Elks Sunday Night--Address Delivered by Hon. John J. Lentz.

MEMBER

The beautiful and touching custom of the B. P. O. E. of holding an annual sacred session, consisting of memorial services for the dead of the order, was duly observed by Newark Lodge 331, B. P. O. E., on Sunday evening. The services were held in the beautiful and commodious lodge room of Newark Lodge, which was totally inadequate to accommodate the large crowd of auditors.

The rooms were appropriately decorated with palms, flowers and potted plants, and a choice program of music was rendered in addition to the impressive ritualistic services of the order.

Hon. John J. Lentz of Columbus, delivered the memorial address. The services were presided over by Dr. G. H. Woods, Exalted Ruler of the lodge, in a very able manner. Following is the program that was rendered:

"The faults of our brethren we write upon the sand;

Their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory."

The evening's program follows: Violin solo, selected, Mr. Otto Meyer.

Opening Services, Brother George H. Wood, Ex. Ruler.

Quartette, Lead Kindly Light, Dudley Buck. Mrs. Chas. W. Miller, soprano; Mrs. Lawhead, alto; Mr. Paul C. Maylone, tenor; Mr. F. G. Warden, basso.

Opening Ode, The Lodge. Grand Ruler of the Universe, All-seeing and benign, Look down upon and bless our work And be all glory thine.

Oh, hear our prayers for our honored dead,

While bearing in our minds The memories graven on each heart For Auld Lang Syne.

Solo, Abide With Me. Little: Mrs. Charles W. Miller.

Invocation, Rev. J. C. Schindel.

Quartette, Light after Darkness. Sankey: Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Lawhead, Mr. Maylone, Mr. Warden.

Eulogy, Hon. John J. Lentz of Columbus.

Solo, One Sweetly Solemn Thought. Ambrose: Mr. Maylone.

Closing Exercises, The Lodge.

Doxology, The Lodge and Congregation.

Praise God from whom all blessings flow, Praise Him that doth all good below.

Praise Him in love and brotherhood, Praise him in hope and fatherhood.

Benediction, Rev. Lester S. Boyce.

Miss Ada Ickes, accompanist.

The violin solo, "Romanza," by Swendsen, rendered by Mr. Otto Meyer, was a treat to the audience, and disclosed a rare technique and expression that bore evidence of the highest type of musical art.

The quartettes were rendered by Newark's favorite local artists, Mrs. Charles W. Miller, soprano; Mrs. Annis Lawhead, alto; Paul C. Maylone, tenor; and F. G. Warden, basso.

Miller is always a favorite with a Newark audience, and her singing on Sunday night was unusually beautiful and effective, as was also that of Mrs. Lawhead, who sings a very pure and effective alto. Mr. Maylone as tenor, and Mr. Warden as basso are also well known Newark musical favorites, and their efforts Sunday night were very pleasing and satisfactory.

Public expectation was very high in regard to the effort of Mr. Lentz, who has a national reputation as an orator, and it is only truth in saying that these expectations were more than realized. The large and cultured audience that listened to him was an appreciative and critical audience, yet the intense interest with which they hung upon the orator's utterances, testified to its being a finished piece of oratorical art more eloquently than any applause could have done.

Mr. Lentz's effort was characteristic of himself, and somewhat out of the usual line of the thought of memorial addresses. It is impossible to do justice to such an effort in anything like an abstract. The address was not so much a eulogy of the dead, as an exhortation and inspiration to the living. The entire tone of the effort was altruistic, and the golden-thought running through it all was that we should not concern ourselves so much about the time and mode of dying, as about the right manner of living. Life should be a constant progress, a constant growth and development, from the good to the better, and from the better to the best, even striving toward the matchless goal of perfection of the Infinite. Death is a mystery, as dark and profound today as it was when Abel lay slain in Eden. No traveler comes back from that undiscovered country to tell us about it. Theology and Philosophy throw no real light upon it. We know nothing about it, except what vague conjecture and fond hopes may give us. The world has been fighting from time immemorial about selfish issues and unprofitable questions. The bigotry and the jealousy and the hatred of humanity toward each other have shown how base mankind may become when given over to selfishness, and developed away from right standards. The God above never meant that humanity should war with each other; should hate each other; should destroy each other. On the contrary, Jesus of Nazareth brought a message of love and peace and good will toward all men.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was formed on the Altruistic idea of doing good to the world, and elevating mankind. The order might help the church, and the church might help it by cementing the world in stronger bands of brotherhood, and by elevating humanity to higher ideals of life and living. It is the sins of omission that are condemning the world, more than the sins of commission. It is the selfishness, idleness and intellectual and spiritual sloth of the world that is eating out the heart of humanity as rust destroys iron.

The speaker dwelt with considerable emphasis on the false ideas of charity which embodied itself in furnishing food and clothing and shelter for the poor. Men need all these, but they also need more. They are not merely animals but they are spiritual beings, whose minds and hearts need to be fed and stimulated and inspired. The final judgment of the world and the fate of the condemned will rest not so much on what they have done, as what they have left undone. "Inasmuch as ye did it not unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did it not unto Me." Men should not concern themselves so much about others intruding upon their rights as to see that they themselves did no wrong to others. This is one of the grand lessons that Elksdom teach, an order that though, comparatively young and small, has reached a membership of 50,000 in the United States, and is exercising an influence for good that no man can estimate. It is a significant fact that this young order embraces in its membership seventy-five members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, a large proportion of that representation and august body of the people. This grand principle of doing good unto others; this grand thought of constant mental and spiritual growth and development to a constant larger and better life, was the inspiring thought of Elksdom. It was the thought that inspired by the lives of the four beloved brothers, whose death we mourn tonight—Allen, Schlegel, Green and Bell—and left their lives such a precious legacy to the world. To do something and be something; to grow and to develop; to progress; to constantly enlarge our vision of humanity and our vision of God—this, and this only, is life. In the thought of Dr. Holland, the coming humanity will care less about being saved, merely, in a sense, and more about being worth saving. The civilizations of the ancient Egyptians, Greeks and Romans have produced wonderful types of individual and national character. But the speaker believed that God Almighty had reserved it to America to produce the highest type of civilization, and the grandest order of men and women that the world had ever known. And in this grand work of transforming, elevating and blessing humanity the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks—if true to itself, and if not true to itself it should perish—has its own place that no other organization could fill, and its own glorious work for God and humanity that no other organization could do.

The speaker then concluded by paying an eloquent tribute to the memory of George Elliott, one of the world's greatest benefactors, and said that if her fame rested upon no other foundation than being the author of that immortal poem, "O May I Join the Choir Invisible," that foundation were enough.

Mr. Lentz closed with reciting very eloquently the following extract from the immortal poem.

O may I join the choir invisible Of those immortal dead who live again In minds made better by the presence of live

In pulses stirred to generosity, In deeds of daring rectitude, in scorn For miserable aims that end with self, In thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars, And with their mild persistence urge men's search

HOOVER-BALL CO.

Newark Institution That is Growing and Prospering--Company Has Just Been Incorporated--
H. J. Hoover Elected President.

The Hoover-Ball Company was incorporated on December 1st, 1920, under the laws of New Jersey, with a capital stock of $25,000. The stockholders of the company met in Newark after the articles of incorporation had been issued and elected the following directors: H. J. Hoover, Eugene Ball, F. M. Black, J. B. Hoover, Newark, O.; James Pintze, New York; and Harry H. Picking, of Newark, N. J.

The directors then elected the following officers: Harry J. Hoover, president.

Eugene F. Ball, secretary and treasurer.

The Hoover-Ball company, incorporated, is the result of the process of a business evolution, every step of which has been marked with progressive ideas of legitimate and healthy expansion.

The embryonic stage of its existence began when Mr. Harry J. Hoover began business in the Newark Cycle Store, of which he was the sole proprietor, in 1892. This was a retail store and was for a time, the only one of its kind in Newark, where bicycles and bicycle supplies were sold at retail only.

Mr. Hoover's experience antedated this time somewhat, however. He was himself an enthusiastic believer in the possibilities of the safety bicycle, and imported the first one of this pattern ever sold in Newark from England.

The Newark Cycle Store continued a successful career until the year 1899, when the Newark Cycle Supply Company began business, with H. J. Hoover still sole proprietor. This company branched out into the wholesale business and Eugene Ball assumed the management, succeeding J. Rollin Browne, who located in Colorado.

This business was continued until the 1st of January, 1902, when the retail business was discontinued, and the Hoover-Ball Company was organized and has done a successful wholesale jobbing business in bicycles, bicycle sundries, druggists' rubber goods and mechanical rubber goods of all kinds.

This line of business will be continued under the new regime, with better facilities for the extension of the business, which is constantly increasing.

The Hoover-Ball company handles its own brands of goods which consist of the "Avalon" bicycle, a high grade medium priced wheel, manufactured for them according to their exclusive designs, in Toledo, which retails at $35.

The "Avalon" brand of rubber goods is manufactured for the company principally at Akron, and consists of water bottles, syringes and other druggists' rubber goods, bicycle tires, buggy tires, automobile tires and other mechanical rubber goods.

They handle also a line of all kinds of bicycle sundries.

All of the goods handled by them are manufactured from their own copyrighted designs and under adequate protection from infringement.

The Hoover-Ball company supplies a vast territory with its goods, and this territory is limited only by their facilities, which will be materially increased so that the goods will be introduced and sold practically over the entire United States.

At present the following states are supplied: Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and part of New York. The trade in these states is seen at regular intervals by the company's two traveling experts, G. O. Simmons, of Bucyrus, O., and J. Pintze, of New York city, formerly traveling representative of the big Chicago company of Morgan & Wright—the manufacturers of the famous bicycle tires of that name.

The headquarters of the company are at present in the Avalon building, corner of Fifth and Main street. Here Secretary and Treasurer Eugene Ball has his office and has a capable and courteous assistant in Miss Maye Dyche.

The men whose names appear in the new firm's title need no words of favorable comment from us.

Harry J. Hoover is now cashier of the Licking County Bank, and is engaged in other business enterprises. He is honorable in all his dealings, progressive in his business ideas, and is thoroughly successful in every undertaking.

Eugene F. Ball is a young man who has become valuable in the conduct of the present business, and had much to do with its development, by his careful and intelligent management.

The company's headquarters will be removed to the new building now being erected on the site of the Brunswick bowling alleys, as soon as it is completed.

A cut of this new building, 200x100 feet appears on another page of this paper.

Chicago Police Say They Have Evidence to Convict a Prominent Society Woman.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—The police department this afternoon closed its investigation of the anonymous letter scandal and immediately after the official report had been made to Chief of Police O'Neil it was announced that positive evidence of the guilt of a prominent north side society woman had been secured and that the arrest could follow within an hour if any of the recipients of the scurrilous letters cared to apply for a warrant. The police say they will take no further steps in the matter unless a warrant is issued.

West Wine Championship.

The West vs. East championship football battle was fought Saturday afternoon on Marshall field, Chicago, between the Hyde Park High school team, of Chicago, and the Brooklyn Polytechnic Preparatory school team of Brooklyn and resulted in a victory for the Western lads by the overwhelming score of 105 to 0.

The Brooklyn team was considered the champion scholastic team of the East, and went to Chicago heralded as wonders. The game was played in a snow storm or the score would have been much larger. The result proves much for western coaching methods, and western players, and many believe that the game fairly indicates the superiority of the western 'varsity' teams as well as scholastic supremacy.

Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, deserves much credit for his showing of the Hyde Park eleven, as he aided materially during the last week in putting them in shape for the contest.

Yost, of Michigan, Manager Kilpatrick of Wisconsin, and manager Baird of Ann Arbor, were enthusiastic spectators and were out to root and hoot for Hyde Park.

Yost said that the game put up by the Chicago boys, reminded him of Michigan, and that once when a Hyde Park player fell on the ball after a fumble, he shouted, "Michigan's ball!"

Coach Aubut of Brooklyn, said: Hyde Park could beat any scholastic team in the East and would make a great showing against the smaller colleges.

Hyde Park has in seven games piled up a total of 346 points to 50 for their opponents. Wisconsin beat them 24 to 10 and Chicago 6 to 5.

Deleahanty is Chief Slugger.

President Ban Johnson of the American League has announced the official figures for the past season in that organization. Big Ed Deleahanty of Washington, leads the batters with a percent of .376, followed by the mighty ajole, Cleveland, with .369, Hickman and Bradley of Cleveland following with .363 and .341.

Bernhard, Cleveland, leads the pitchers winning 15, losing 6; Waddell Philadelphia is second 23 won 7 lost, and Young, Boston, third, 32 won, 12 lost. Each of the three had one tie game.

In fielding, Carey, Washington, leads the first basemen, with .991; Lajoie, Cleveland, .974, the second basemen; Collins, Boston, .951 the third basemen; Wallace, St. Louis, .951 the shortstops, and Lepine, Detroit, 1000, in 15 games, the outfielders. Jones of Chicago, is the logical leader, however, with .980 in 135 games. Warner, Boston, .979, leads the catchers.

Tried to Bribe Heston.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 8.—Martin Heston, Michigan's great half back, was approached before the Thanksgiving day game by an Ann Arbor man, who offered him $500 in cash if he would by some hook or crook throw the game to Minnesota. so the gophers could win.

But the man made a sad mistake. Heston not only promptly turned the offer down, but gave the tempter such a roast for the insult to his manhood that it is not likely that the fellow will ever attempt another such proposition to a Michigan man.

It was the man's intention to bet $2,000 on Minnesota, providing he could work the deal.

When Heston was seen today regarding the matter he said: "I do not care for any publicity about it, but I will say that an offer of that kind was

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. Saturday Night Entertainment Will be Given by Denison Glee Club of Granville.

The lower floor of Taylor Hall was well filled at the tenth Popular Saturday Night Entertainment and those who were in attendance enjoyed one of the best programs of the series.

Mr. Urlin G. Perrill showed real talent in his readings. Although not a professional he is doing a grade of work that is sure to win him recognition. His rendition of Riley's dialect poetry is especially fine, and won him the largest applause.

Miss Belle White delighted all with her singing. She possesses a rare voice and shows a fine culture in her use of it. This with her winsome stage presence makes her a favorite at once with the audience.

The piano solos of Mrs. Karl Ashton seemed to be greatly appreciated and she was recalled for a second number. Her playing has in it more than the technique, a real soul element, what so many pianists lack in their work.

Next Saturday Evening's Entertainment will be a concert by the Denison University Glee and Mandolin clubs. Thirty-five musicians will take part in the program. As the attendance is likely to be larger than at any previous "Saturday Night," the management has decided to sell reserved seats this week. The board will be put on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. The price will be the same as before, 10 cents to all alike, first come, first served.

Granville, O., Dec. 8.—Some days ago Mr. Howard Montgomery, son of Mr. John Montgomery, the well known stock raiser, who resides a short distance out of the village, left for Chicago to attend the big stock show. Several days ago the Lincoln Hotel in Chicago, where Mr. Montgomery usually stopped when in the city, caught fire and fourteen of the guests were smothered to death. Some anxiety has been felt here over the safety of Mr. Montgomery, as no word has been received here from him since the fire. Mr. Wesley Montgomery, of the firm of Pratt & Montgomery, the planing mill men of Newark, says that he has no anxiety regarding the safety of Mr. Montgomery. He says that a list of the dead has been published and that all the other inmates of the hotel at the time of the fire have been accounted for.

Rapid Progress Being Made on Newark's New Flat Building.

The Newark Real Estate and Improvement Company's New Block, 200x100 Feet, Corner Church and Fourth Sts
Wilbur T. Mills, Architect.

The accompanying illustration shows how the big new business and residence block now building at the corner of Church and Fourth streets, this city, will appear when completed.

This three story structure which is owned by the Newark Real Estate and Improvement company, has a frontage of 200 feet on Church street and is 100 feet deep. It is being erected under the personal supervision of Mr. Edward W. Crayton, president of the Real Estate Company, which purchased the ground for the building in October from Benjamin Franklin and Jas. E. Jones.

The accompanying picture of the building was prepared from the perspective drawing of the architect, Mr. Wilbur T. Mills of Columbus.

The entire first story of the building is to be used for store rooms which are so arranged that they may be rented singly or in pairs. The central portion of the building, 40 feet in width was formerly used as a bowling alley, but this portion will now be made to correspond with the rest of the structure and the second and third stories will contain a large hall for private lectures, entertainments, dances and other social functions. Mr. H. J. Hoover is especially interested in this portion of the building and expects to have this hall when finished, one of the best of its kind in the country.

The remaining portion of the upper stories is laid out in living apartments of three, four and five rooms each, each suite being equipped with the most approved modern appliances of every sort and made as nearly up to date as possible. The building will be heated with steam throughout and lighted with electricity and gas.

The exterior treatment of the building consists of fire flashed mottled brick of a rich straw color and the trimmings are of blue Berea sand stone, making a combination which will be very beautiful and a great improvement to this part of the city.

The Newark Real Estate and Improvement Company has certainly made a record for speed and satisfactory building results which is a record breaker in Newark, as a large portion of the building will be under roof within sixty days from the time ground was first broken. With a few more days of good weather the west half of the building will be ready for the roof. Plumbers will this week begin the installation of steam heating apparatus. The foundation for the east half of the structure is finished.

While the Newark Real Estate and Improvement Company has had a large force of men at work on this building since October the north end of the city has not been forgotten. The company, which has developed a large tract of land lying north of Charles street is just now finishing a half dozen houses on Hudson avenue in the Hudson Park addition. All but one of the houses thus far completed by this company have been sold while many of the lots in this and other additions handled by this company have been sold without houses. The company's office is at No. 14 North Park Place, Newark.

This company is incorporated under the laws of Ohio with $100,000 capital, fully paid. The officers are: Edward W. Crayton, President; Warren S. Weiant, vice president; C. C. McGraw, secretary; C. H. Spencer, treasurer; Carl Norpell, attorney.

"King Lear" by S. H. Clark Saturday Night a Pleasing Success—Social and Personal Items.

Granville, O., Dec. 8.—The third number on the Y. M. C. A. lecture course of Denison was a dramatic recital of Shakespeare's "King Lear," given by Mr. S. H. Mr. Clark has great dramatic ability and a striking personality, and his brilliant and interesting recital was much enjoyed by all who were so fortunate as to hear him.

The member of the Kappa Phi Sorority of Denison University and the Misses Hunter and Earle of Columbus were entertained by Miss Helen Case Saturday afternoon.

The members of the Sigma Chi fraternity very charmingly entertained their lady friends Saturday evening after the recital at a reception given in honor of Mr. S. H. Clark, formerly a member of that fraternity.

Miss Blanche Wilkin of Springfield, who has been visiting friends here for some days, has returned home.

There is one rational way to treat nasal catarrh: the medicine is applied direct to the affected membrane. The remedy is Ely's Cream Balm. It restores the inflamed tissues to a healthy state without drying all the life out of them and it gives back the lost senses of taste and smell. The sufferer who is tired of vain experiments should use Cream Balm. Druggists sell it for 50 cents. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York, will mail it.

SORE NECK

Take Scott's Emulsion of scrofula. Children often have sores on the neck that won't heal up. The sores may come and go. Parents may not know what the matter is, what to do. Scrofula is the trouble and Scott's Emulsion is the medicine.

Scott's Emulsion heals the sores. But that is not a Scrofula leads to consumption. This is the real danger.

Scott's Emulsion is the "ounce of prevention" that keeps off consumption.

AMUSEMENTS.

Few comic operas have more than an attempt at a plot but King Dodo, which comes to the Auditorium next Friday night, not only has a real one, but it is interesting and the story is not finished until the final curtain comes down. "King Dodo" the ruler of DodoLand in his declining years begins to fear death and the infirmities incident to old age. He wants to grow young again in order to marry his ward, Princess Angela, a girl of 18, formerly betrothed to Piola, a young soldier of fortune.

Pedro, the Court Chamberlain, in love with Annette, the daughter of Sancho, the Innkeeper, against the strict orders of the King releases Angela from the palace for a brief interview with her fiancé. The King surprises the lovers and orders their arrest and confinement. The resourceful Piola tells the King he has discovered a fountain in a faroff country whose magic waters make the old young. Thereupon, he is respite and made the leader of an expedition to search for the mythical liquid rejuvenator. A year later finds Dodo and his court in Spoojland, ruled over by Queen Lili, who sits on her throne until the arrival of a man possessing the requirements of relieving her of her scepter and whom it is her intention to marry. When King Dodo arrives in search of the fountain of youth the exercises all her wiles to convince him that youth is a delusion and that his proper course is to remain in his present state and become her husband and sharer of her throne. Dodo looks with favor upon the arrangements and actually orders his troops back to DodoLand, declaring his intention of accepting Queen Lili as his spouse. He names Piola as his successor a King of the Dodo and gives his consent to his union with Angela. During the nuptial fete, which Queen Lili orders the King asks for a drink of water. A sup is filled from a nearby spring, which proves to be the long sought fountain of youth and in spite of himself Dodo is transformed into a boy of ten upon draining the vessel. The Queen promptly repudiates him and the misguided monarch finds himself without a throne, without a sweetheart, and devoid of all power, and left with nothing—but youth. He tries in vain to re-establish himself with Queen Lili but is repulsed again and again. But by an accident the discomfited Dodo tumbles headlong into the magic spring, and upon being rescued another transformation has taken place and he is once more the decrepit ruler of his people. Queen Lili expresses her willingness to proceed with her original idea and marry the King, thereby adjusting all complications.

GLASS WORKS

George D. Heisey looks after the business affairs of the company in his usually capable manner, and Wilson Heisey attends to details in several other departments.

At the E. H. Everett Glass Co.'s works nearly the full force is being employed. They will in all likelihood add the rest of the shops to the working force in very near future. Many of the workers at this plant are from the east, where they usually spend their summer vacation.

The works here are in the best of shape and the management deserves credit for its progressiveness.

Charley Opel and Gottlieb Flohr, well known workers, who formerly lived at Baltimore and Brooklyn, are still at the Everett. Others employed there are P. W. Ewald, John Balzer, John Gallagher, A. The Whole Secret

Of the Remarkable Success of a Remedy for Indigestion and Stomach Troubles.

A NEW REMEDY WHICH MAY REVOLUTIONIZE THE TREATMENT OF STOMACH TROUBLES.

Now Placed Before the Public and Bears the Endorsement of Many Leading Physicians and Scientific Men.

This preparation is not a wonderful discovery nor yet a secret patent medicine, neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach troubles with which nine-tenths of our nation are more or less affected.

The remedy is in the form of a pleasant-tasting tablets or lozenges containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure aseptic pepsin (free from animal impurities) Golden Seal and diastase. They are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Many interesting experiments made with these tablets show they possess remarkable digestive power, one grain of the active principle in one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets being sufficient to thoroughly digest 3,000 grains of lean meat, eggs, oatmeal or similar wholesome food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after dinner pills and cheap cathartics, which simply irritate and inflame the intestines without having any effect whatever in curing indigestion.

If the stomach can be rested and assisted in the work of digestion it will very soon recover its normal vigor, as no organ is so much abused and overworked as the stomach. This is the secret and the whole secret of the remarkable success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a remedy practically unknown a few years ago and now the most popular, safest and most widely sold of any treatment for stomach weakness.

This success has been secured entirely upon its merits as a digestive, pure and simple; because there can be no stomach trouble if the food is promptly digested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it completely, so that it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue.

Every drop of blood, every bone, nerve and tissue in the body can be renewed in but one way, and that is from wholesome food properly digested. There is no other way and the idea that a medicine in itself can purify the blood or supply new tissue and strong nerves is ridiculous and on a par with the fol de rol that dyspepsia is a germ disease or that other fallacy that a weak stomach which refuses to digest food can be made to do so by irritating the bowels by pills and cathartics.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure dyspepsia, water brash, sour stomach, catarrh of the stomach, gas and bloating after meals because they furnish the digestive power, which is the one thing that weak stomachs lack, and unless that lack is supplied it is useless to attempt to assist it by the use of "tonics," "pills" and cathartics which have absolutely no digestive power and do not claim to have any.

The regular use of one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals will demonstrate their merit and efficiency better than any other argument.

They are sold by druggists everywhere, and a little booklet on cause and cure of stomach troubles will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

THIS IS TRUE.

The wise outlay of money is in a permanent home. There the family comes together daily after the stress and storm of life as to a refuge. The possession of a home, however humble, gives one a sense of permanency, of vested rights; awakens public spirit and patriotism and arouses emulation. It is a foundation on which to build, a point from which to advance. Every flower enhances the value of the home and endears it to the heart and memory, hallowed by a tender association, endeared by recollection.

FADS OF FASHION.

How the New Furs Are Used—Odd Winter Materials.

(Special Correspondence.)
New York, Dec. 8.—Hunters' green and Russian green in woolen materials are exceptionally handsome for winter, especially when trimmed with fur of a harmonizing color. Black, brown and some grays look well, but nothing is more artistic than beaver. Unfortunately beaver is very expensive, but there is a substitute for it so beautiful that no one could object to wear it. This is plucked and undyed racoon. This fur has a depth and beauty next to beaver, which it resembles to a remarkable degree. The color is like that of beaver. It makes any kind of trimming suitable for collars, bands and borders. On one of these greens it would make an ideal garment.

In the illustration there are a collar, cuffs and a muff of grebe, which has not been seen much until now for several years, but it is very refined and durable, which chinchilla is not. Squirrel at first appeared to be in high favor, but the horse show, which stamps anything right or wrong, has put a very solid foot down on this fur for anything except automobile coats, so I do not know what those women who bought squirrel garments will do unless they turn them inside out and wear the fur as a lining. It is curious what an effect the horse show has upon fashion. What is worn there is at once accepted as law if not gospel.

Hats keep on, as Sam Weller said, "swellin' wisely," until it seems as if it were time to stop. On some of them one now finds great ornaments in metal and in some cases of semiprecious stones, like cairngorms and malachite. A woman can have anything she likes on her hat, and some persons will even it. That is what we dress for, the mere men say.

Skirt seems to all woolen stuffs are quite a rage just now, and they are usually finished at the ends with arrowheads of black saddle silk. Clover leaves in conventional designs are also seen, and clusters of three dots to finish and hold the seam. A majority of the walking dresses, especially those of broadcloth, are trimmed only with the stitching. Three to ten rows of such trimming are put along the flounce or hem and on the coat or jacket.

Sleeves are different in shape according to the needs of the garment. The tailor gowns of thick material have rather close bishop shapes, with the cuffs, sometimes two or more of them one above the other. Ordinary house gowns have bishop, coat or half sleeves, as is preferred, only where it is a half sleeve there is an undersleeve of some kind. The lower or undersleeve, as one may like to call it, is of some thinner stuff than the rest of the dress. Sleeves for home wear are not at all large, but those for the long coats and cloaks for outdoors are enormous around the bottom.

Rough surfaced stuffs are the favorite materials for nearly all the ordinary gowns, but the broadcloths are really very fashionable, especially in cream and ivory white. It is remarkable how quickly the fancy for white street gowns has taken root. The white dresses of course are really fine enough for any possible occasion, but the street is scarcely the place for them. Several of the lightest tints are offered in the thick zibelines. One kind—a pale pink on the crushed strawberry order, with long silvery hairs over the surface—is exquisite for a young woman. Light French gray, which is almost white when the white hairs have been laid over the gray, is also very beautiful. Very light tan and pale blue are among the most desirable of these, but there are some darker colors in this stylish cloth. Prune, brown and a dark or blood red are among them. A few of these zibelines have faint stripes, and some even show figures, but so overshadowed by the long hairs that one must look twice to see them. There is a novelty called porcupine cloth in nearly all the colors of the season worn in basket style, and in the weaving there are long white hairs set so that they almost stand up like the fretful quilts that we read about.

OLIVE HARPER.

WIT FROM MARK TWAIN

Happy Hits In His Birthday Banquet Speech.

MANY ORATIONS HURLED AT HIM

When the Humorist's Turn Came, He Paid His Respects to Fellow Guests at Colonel Harvey's Dinner in a Lively Manner—He Tells a Sarsaparilla Joke and What Tom Reed Looks Like.

Humorous oratory flowed freely at the Metropolitan club, in New York, the other night after the banquet given to Mark Twain in honor of the humorist's sixty-seventh birthday by Colonel George B. M. Harvey, head of the Harper firm of publishers. Mr. Twain himself was the target and had difficulty in getting a hearing. As he rose to reply to each of the speeches that were hurled at him by several of the distinguished guests he was gently but firmly thrust back into his seat. When finally all were through and Mark was allowed to explode, he said:

"I think I ought to be allowed to talk as long as I want to for the reason that I have canceled all my winter's engagements of every kind for good and sufficient reasons and am making no new engagements for this winter, and therefore this is the only time, the only chance, I shall have to disembowel my skull for a year.

"I wish to thank the chairman for the innovation he has introduced here. Now, under that old custom the chairman got up and made a speech. He introduced the prisoner at the bar and covered him all over with compliments. You can't talk on compliments. A man gets up and is filled to the eyes with happy emotions, but his tongue is tied. He has nothing to say; he is in the condition of Dr. Rice's friend who came home drunk and explained it to his wife, and his wife said to him: 'John, you have drunk all the whiskey you want. You ought to ask for sarsaparilla.' He said, 'Yes, but when I have drunk all the whiskey I can't say sarsaparilla,' and so I think it is a much better thing to leave a man unmolested until the testimony and pleadings are all in. Give him a chance.

"I see here around me the captains of industry in all the great, illustrious industries, most distinguished men. There are more than fifty here, I believe, and I believe that out of those fifty I know thirty-nine of them well. I could probably borrow money from—well, from the others anyway.

"It is a proud thing to me indeed to see such a distinguished gathering come here on such an occasion as this, when there is no foreign prince to be feted, when you have come here, as I take it you do come here, not to do honor to hereditary privilege and ancient lineage, but you are here to do reverence to moral excellence and elemental veracity—and, dear me, how old it seems to make me! Sixty-seven! I look around me, and I see three or four persons I have known so many, many years. I have known John Hay and Tom Reed and the Rev. Mr. Twichell close up thirty-six years; I have known Mr. Howells nearly thirty-four years, and I knew Chauncey Depew before he could walk straight and before he learned to tell the truth.

"Tom Reed has got a good heart and he has got a good intellect, but he hasn't got any judgment. Why, when Tom Reed was invited to lecture to the Ladies' society, which has something to do with morals—I don't know what it was—advancement, I suppose, of pure morals—he had the indiscretion to begin by saying that some of us can't be optimists, but by judiciously utilizing the opportunities that Providence put in our way, you know, we can all be bigamists. Those were his limitations. Anything he has got to state he states, if he thinks it is true. Well, that was true, but that was no place to say that; so they fired him out.

"A lot of accounts have been settled here tonight for me. I have held grudges against some of these people, but they have all been wiped out by the very handsome compliments they have paid me. Even Wayne MacVeagh—I have had a grudge against him many years.

"The first time I saw Wayne MacVeagh was at a private dinner party at Charles A. Dana's, and when I got there he was going on, and I tried to get a word in here and there, but you know what Wayne MacVeagh is when he is started; and I could not get in five words to his one or to his five.

"Mr. Howells has a peculiar gift for seeing the merits of people, and he has always exhibited them in my favor. Howells has never written anything about me that I couldn't read six or seven times a day. He is always just and always fair. He has written more appreciatively of me than any one in this world and published it in the North American Review. He did me the justice to say that my intentions—be it said that—were always good; that I wanted people's conventions rather than their convictions. Now, I wouldn't want anything handsomer than that said of me.

"I heard it intimated that it is New England that makes New York and builds up this country and makes it great, overlooking the fact that there's a lot of people here who came from elsewhere, like John Hay, from away out west, and Wayne MacVeagh, from away out in my state, and Howells, from Ohio, and I, from Missouri, and we are doing what we can to build up New York a little, to elevate it.

"Why, when I was living in that village in Hannibal, Mo., on the banks of the Mississippi, and Hay up in the town of Warsaw, also on the banks of the Mississippi river—well, it was an emotional bit of the Mississippi river, and if it is low water you have to climb up to the town on a ladder, and when it goes down you have to hunt for it with a deep sea lead. It was a simple, simple life, cheap, but comfortable, and we were good boys, and we did not break the Sabbath often—not more than once a week.

"So we grew, John Hay and I, and now John Hay is secretary of state, and I am a gentleman.

"Another of my oldest friends is here—Rev. Joe Twichell—and whenever Twichell goes to start a church I see them flocking, rushing to buy the land all around there. They find the real estate goes up all around the spot, and they always try to get Twichell to start a church somewhere else after awhile, and wherever you see him go you can go and buy land there with confidence, feeling sure that there will be a double price for you before very long. Many and many a time I have attended the annual sale in his church and bought up all the pews on a margin."

NEW THORNLESS PINEAPPLE

Latest Scientific Product of the Agricultural Department.

A pineapple is the latest achievement of agricultural experiment. Heretofore, with the exception of a few scattered specimens bearing inferior fruit, all pineapple plants have had spined leaves. One can easily realize the difficulties of the planter by imagining a field of cornstalks covered with sharp pointed needles. The department has obtained the new variety by crossing the unmarketable, smooth leaved class with the typical spiny pineapple of superior flavor, says the Washington Post. Although the product has been tested and pronounced successful by experts, it is not yet ready for distribution, as a new branch of a plant family is not considered established until the second or third generation. However, a new generation is already springing up, and its members are curious to behold. In some instances the offspring have persistent ancestral traits sticking out at the end of the leaf or along its sides, while others are worthy examples of the head of the new house.

The United States station at Miami, Fla., has been sent one of this assortment, and the latest plantations are situated in that locality.

BRITISH BIRDS DYING OUT.

Many Extinct in Places Where They Were Numerous.

Every bird has its day apparently, and the day of several birds once common enough in England seems to have arrived, says the London Tatler. For instance, the fat bustard is now practically extinct. This bird much resembles a fat Christmas turkey and at one time was easily enough found. Now there are many naturalists who would give £80 for one. The golden eagle is another beautiful bird that has become very rare in the country. In desolate parts of Ireland and Scotland it is still to be met with occasionally, but the young gamins in these parts are ever on the lookout for the eggs of the bird and usually know where to find them, with the result that the beautiful bird is becoming scarcer every year.

The raven is also rapidly dying out of existence, as is also the goldfinch. Bird snaring and nest robbing are largely accountable for the disappearance of many beautiful British birds.

MONSTER SHOES.

Number Seventeen, Made on Special Lasts, For a Negro.

A Boston special to the New York Times says that a pair of shoes was shipped recently from Rockland, Mass., which are said to be the largest shoes ever manufactured for actual wear. They are 17 size and F. F. width. Thus they are about fifteen inches long. Four common shoe boxes were required for packing them, two for each shoe.

They were for a colored man, Harvey Murray, who works in a sawmill in Tirrell, Ark. A special pair of lasts had to be made. It took an entire skin of patent hide for the ramps and about all that was good in a side of sole leather for the soles.

A Novel Challenge.

Something novel in the way of a challenge has been issued by M. Bilmunaud, who is fifty years of age, through the Auto-velo, says a Paris cable dispatch to the New York Herald. He has deposited 2,500 francs and offers to compete with any one in the world in boxing, fencing, running, walking, rowing, jumping, cycling, throwing a ball, tennis, pingpong, swimming, driving, skating, writing, drawing, billiards, chess, draughts, bagatelle, the imitation of animal voices and fifty other things. He now awaits covering stakes.

Air Injections For Neuralgia.

A new cure for neuralgia is said to have been devised by Dr. Cordier, a surgeon of Lyons. It consists of the injection of air into the painful area so that it is blown up in the form of a ball. This ball is then thoroughly massaged, so as to spread the air about under the skin. This stretches and massages the fine nervous network of the tissue and thus, according to Dr. Cordier, relieves the pain. He claims to have had but two failures in twenty-five cases.

Anglo-French Frontiers.

The forthcoming delimitation of the Franco-British frontier between the Niger and Lake Tchad will certainly be a delicate task. It would be a great mistake, says the Paris Petit Parisien, to suppose that the European powers can safely pursue a policy of pin pricks in central Africa. They are all exposed to the dangers arising from Muslim fanaticism, and they must remain in agreement if they desire to be respected.

COST OF THE BOER WAR.

Latest Calculation Places It at Over a Billion Dollars.

The latest calculation made by the British war office shows that the cost of the Boer war was, in round figures, $240,000,000 ($1,200,000,000), says the New York Commercial Advertiser. The pay account was $58,178,500; medical service, $2,646,000; militia pay, $3,101,000; yeomanry pay, $519,020; volunteer corps pay, $2,908,200; transports and remounts, $51,741,500; provisions and forage, $54,423,800; clothing, $13,756,700; warlike stores, $31,170,000; works, $8,258,083; military education, $371,000; miscellaneous effective charges, $182,630; war office, $640,300; non-effective charges for officers, $5,561,929; for men, $3,850,510, and superannuation and compensation charges, $371,700, making a total expenditure of $242,340,692.

It has been calculated that each one of the 350,000 men employed in the war received an average compensation of $197, and, allowing $29,500,000 for transportation, with the hypothesis that 350,000 horses were shipped to South Africa, it cost $81 to take one man and his horse out and back. On the same basis it works out that $77 was spent to maintain each man and his horse.

NEW MONEY FOR XMAS.

Wealthy Financier to Use Twenty-five $1,000 Notes as Gifts.

That the month of Christmas joys—and troubles—is here again became evident the other day to the teller of the United States treasury at New York by an application for twenty-five crisp, new $1,000 bills to be used as Christmas presents by a wealthy financier whose name was not given, says the New York Times. The bills—all of them yellow backed gold certificates—were counted off a package of 500 new ones which is kept in a special box in the safe.

Every year about this time there comes a heavy demand for new bills of all denominations, for new gold coins and new "small change" to be used as Yuletide presents. This year the demand is starting in unusually early, the above application for new $1,000 bills having been the first.

A $1,000 bill may seem a good sized present, but there are many millionaires who make such presents to their trusted clerks or confidential employees.

CUP RACES A LA CHINESE.

Englishman Explains International Yachting Contest to a Celestial.

A Chinese gentleman, according to the London Tatler, wrote to the editor of an English newspaper in Tientsin saying that sometimes he was at a loss to understand the meaning of the messages which were received from Reuter and said he wanted to know, among other things, what is Shamrock III. The editor informed him as follows:

"The America's cup is a piece of elongated silver, much coveted by English and American people, who sail boats for it. It is worth a hundred taels [a tael is worth 2s. 3d.], and a boat to compete for it costs about 500,000 taels. The man who has the fastest boat keeps it till some other man builds a faster boat. An American holds it at present and believes it is his for keeps because the English people have forgotten how to build boats. Sir Thomas Lipton thinks he can build a better sampan than any that can be built in America and has tried twice already to beat the American sampan."

MORGAN LIKE NAPOLEON.

British Paper Says Banker Seems Unable to Stop in His Career.

The London Daily Mail recently published the first of a series of articles about J. P. Morgan and his methods. The paper calls him the most remarkable financier of modern times.

In introducing editorially its series of articles the Mail deprecates Morgan's methods, saying the Americans will not have his unattractive shares and that it remains to be seen if British investors will. The editorial continues:

"It is a misfortune for the world that such vast issues in stocks should hang on the discretion and judgment of a single man, for the failure of any one of Morgan's trusts may mean financial disaster.

"Yet, like Napoleon, he seems unable to halt or rest in his career. Like Napoleon, he may find the moment will come when the strain upon his system becomes greater than he can bear."

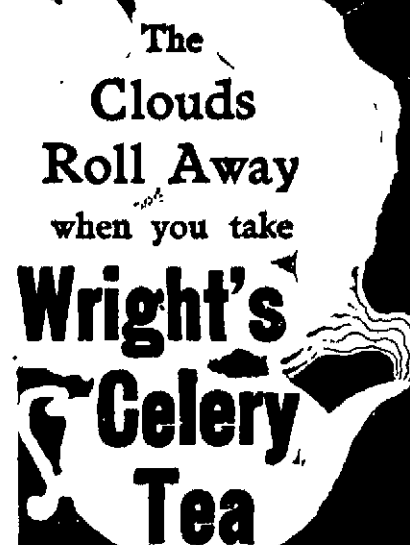

Secretary Hay Taken For a Sport.

Secretary Hay is the most dignified of men. At the cabinet meeting the other day he told a story of an experience he had when he went to New York a few days ago. He took the midnight train and in the morning stopped at the station restaurant in Jersey City to get a cup of coffee, says the Washington correspondent of the New York World. While he was drinking his coffee and nibbling a roll a large, red faced man who was not at all impressed by dignity nudged the secretary of state with a vigorous elbow and, pointing to the suzani, said: "Say, sport, ferry over the confectionery, will you?"

A New Type of Cruiser.

The British admiralty has sent to the leading Clyde shipbuilders specifications for a first class armored cruiser of an entirely new type. The cruiser, which will have a displacement of 13,000 tons, will have all her guns placed in a citadel instead of in casemates. The gun power is greatly increased, several 2.2 inch guns being fitted. The speed will be twenty-two knots.

THE WRIGHT MEDICAL COMPANY, Columbus, Ohio.

OCHILTREE'S REPORTEE.

Amusing Anecdotes of the Famous Texas Raconteur.

One of the best of the late Colonel Tom Ochiltree's stories was on himself, and he enjoyed it as much as did the thousands of friends to whom he told it, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. While the colonel was a representative in congress from the state of Texas and was returning home from Washington he observed a large crowd at the station when his train stopped. At once he stepped out on the platform and began thus:

"Gentlemen, I thank you for this welcome home."

"Welcome! Thunder!" a constituent interrupted. "Henry Bacon has just committed suicide in the station."

There is another story of an interrupted speech that Colonel Ochiltree used to tell on himself sometimes. It happened when he was a guest of the Clover club in Philadelphia. Colonel Ochiltree arose at the proper prandial moment and launched forth as follows:

"Gentlemen, I am pleased."

"What a liar you are, Tom!" shouted a man in a distant corner.

Colonel Ochiltree paused and looked pained.

"Don't stop, colonel," shouted another man. "Go ahead and tell another whopper."

The readiness of the colonel's wit is well illustrated by the following anecdote:

"Is it really true, Colonel Ochiltree, as people say, that you are the greatest liar in the world?" Mrs. George Alfred Townsend asked once.

The colonel was not disarmed by this somewhat audacious sally, but replied instantly:

"No, madam. There are three great liars in the world. I am one of them, and your husband is the other two."

FINE WINDOW FOR SKIBO.

Carnegie's Own History and That of Castle Pictured in Glass.

A huge stained glass window for Skibo castle, Andrew Carnegie's place in Scotland, has just been finished at the Royal College of Art, says a London cable dispatch to the New York Evening Journal. It is composed of fifty lights. In the center is a figure of St. Gilbert, who made Skibo his palace in the year 1235. To the left represents Sigurd and the date 946, when he built the castle. To the right appears the Duke of Montrose, who was entrapped in the castle in 1650.

The figures are flanked by views of Skibo castle and the cottage in which Mr. Carnegie was born. Above the cottage is a picture of a sailing vessel in which Mr. Carnegie, as a penniless boy, took passage to the United States, while below is a representation of the great liner which brought him back to Scotland after he had made his vast fortune. The window was designed by Professor Gerald Moira.

To Harness the Colorado.

Arizona engineers regard the Grand Canyon of the Colorado as affording one of the greatest fields in existence for the development of electricity from water power, says Youth's Companion. In addition to the immense power of the Colorado itself large stores of energy are available in the smaller streams that leap into the vast chasm. The plan by which the power of the main stream will, it is now thought, eventually be utilized is that of "pickling up" the fall of the river by means of tunnels. At a point about seventy miles north of Williams it is said that a fall of 5,000 feet can be found in a distance but little exceeding a mile.

"Court Marshal" Latest in Titles.

The craze for titles among Germans has just received a singular illustration, says a special Berlin cable dispatch to the New York World. The Grand Duke of Hesse has published a special gazette concerning the hereditary title of court marshal on the mansion who has reconstructed the grand ducal bathroom.

Novelty in Brooches.

Something new in which the American Indian is figuring is a brooch. The Indian is painted in colors, and the brooch setting appears to be gun metal.

FAMOUS GAMBLING PALACE

Artistic Features of Canfield's Place, Recently Hailed in New York.

When Inspector Brooks of the New York police and a corps of men from his office, under the personal direction of District Attorney Jerome, recently raided the gambling house in New York owned and operated by Richard Canfield, the biggest and most influential individual proprietor of a gambling house in the world, they found a palatial home for games of chance.

The walls of Canfield's place are covered with tapestries and paintings of great value, and soft, rich carpets cover the floors, says the New York World. The first floor is one immense parlor, and the second floor, where the gambling apparatus was placed, is divided into two rooms. In the other night were large mahogany tables, with heavy carved legs.

The arrangements for lighting are unique. While one is conscious that scores of electric lights are shining down on him, not one can be seen. By means of panels light is softly reflected into the room.

Canfield's private rooms were the greatest surprise to the raiders, however. If the public rooms were magnificent, Canfield's were regal. The scheme of decoration that prevailed throughout the house was seen there also. Among the pictures were several of Canfield's children, and one that especially attracted attention was a painting of Canfield himself with the arm of his laughing little daughter about his neck. In the rear parlor on the second floor was a buffet loaded with silverware. Every article bore the monogram of the owner of the house.

During the search of the house the detectives carried little hammers. They were instructed to use the hammers in sounding the walls. They did not tap very lightly, and several times Mr. Canfield begged them not to strike so hard, as he feared they would break the freckling and otherwise damage the walls. Once a detective struck a handsome interlaced monogram of mother of pearl, and a great piece of the pearl fell to the polished floor.

On the walls of the first floor were beautiful specimens of inlaid mother of pearl monograms and tracings. On the ceilings were types of the highest art of the fresco painter and artist. Throughout the rooms were great pillars all gilded and resplendent in gold tracing.

EAGER TO HUNT IN ALASKA

President Roosevelt Hears Glowing Reports on Giant Moose There.

H. S. New, editor of the Indianapolis Journal, made a report at the White House the other day that set the president to walking up and down and rubbing his hands, says a Washington special dispatch to the New York World. The president had heard about Alaska as a hunting ground and had had Mr. New go up and investigate.

"That's nothing," said Mr. New as he jerked his thumb toward the big moose head in the state dining room. "You can get 'em half as big again and shoot 'em yourself. They're there by the hundred."

Then he went into details, and the president, enraptured, planned a trip to the frozen north. Mr. New got two moose, but could have shot many more. He saw 3,000 mountain sheep in one day's tramp, and the country is over-run with small game. His recital of the hardships a hunter must undergo on account of the climate and the rough country only whetted the president's desire to make the trip.

He Succeeds Mr. Hass, Who is Made Assistant to Mr. Potter—Local Railway Items.

JAPANESE ARMOR.

The Japanese Armor, of which so much has been written and spoken about during the past six months, can now be seen without money and without price at Carl & Seymour's shoe store. Its value runs into thousands and besides it is over three hundred years old. It is a wonder, and it was only through a very clever piece of maneuvering that this enterprising firm was allowed the honorable privilege of exhibiting the same.

PLANING MILL CHANGE.

Mr. Thomas H. Jones, who for the past several months has been engaged in operating the South Fourth street planing mill, Monday sold the business to Messrs. Ben B. Jones the contractor, and H. D. Carpenter, who has been connected with the mill for the past four years in the capacity of foreman.

Messrs. Jones and Carpenter are men of enterprise and push, and it is their intention to remodel the building and equip it with new machinery, making it a first class up to date planing mill in every respect. Mr. T. H. Jones will devote his entire time to farming and the raising of White Plymouth Rock Chickens.

JUDGE TAYLOR

Makes Statement Giving Reason for Taking Benefit of Bankruptcy Law—Owes Nothing.

Wednesday, August 17, 1898.

Journal 10, p. 272, Probate Court.

On the 10th day of August, 1895, David A. Allen, at that time Probate Judge of this county, met with a sudden and violent death by being thrown from a buggy in the city of Newark, O., resulting in the closing of this office until the 17th day of August, 1898, at which date Jonathan Rees assumed the duties of the office of Probate Judge by reason of his appointment by the Governor of the State to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Allen, aforesaid. During said interval this office was closed and no business whatever was transacted therein.

JONATHAN REES, Judge.

The above was taken from the Journal of the Probate Court as made and entered of record on the Journal of said record by Probate Judge Jonathan Rees. I was elected Nov. 8, 1895, and entered upon the duties of said office Nov. 15, 1898. I was re-elected Nov. 1899, for a full term. The story circulated that I am in debt is false and without any foundation. I paid all my debts in full, I do not owe a man in Licking county or State of Ohio. I took the benefit of the Bankruptcy Law, simply to avoid a statutory liability in an incorporated company in which some stock was in my name, although I was not in fact the owner of the stock. I paid some money into said company which I lost, because the person for whom I bid the stock off failed to pay me. I bid the stock off at sheriff's sale for Eli Hull and at his request, and afterwards he refused to pay me. I was not interested directly or indirectly in said company, but I bid off the stock for him. I do not owe Joseph Kuster & Co. a single cent. Joseph Kuster is an honest man and will take pleasure in sustaining what I say is true. All other stories circulated concerning me at the time of and before my nomination were false. All the stories circulated since my nomination and up to the time of the election are false and without any foundation. The falsehoods circulated in the contest for the nomination aided in bringing about the result at the election.

I held the office of Probate Judge one year two months and 24 days of Judge Allen's time. Judge Jonathan Rees held the office from Aug. 17, 1898 until Nov. 15, 1898 by appointment of the Governor of Ohio. This statement gives all the facts concerning the time when I was elected and commenced the duties as Probate Judge. It is not true that I have had two terms, or that I was a candidate for a third term. I was a candidate for a second term. I am not in favor of a third term.

Respectfully,

WALDO TAYLOR.

A Charming Street Costume.

A charming street costume of tan and brown mixed suiting is here depicted. The jacket and skirt are cut in sections, each section piped with brown velvet and handsomely trimmed with ocre cloth applique. The vest, which is cut with a standing collar, is made of pale biscuit embroidered cloth and is edged with brown blue and black galloon. A wide velvet girdle comes around the waist. Particular attention is called to the sleeve which forms a wide flare over a puff of biscuit peau de soie. All machine stitchings must be carefully done and for this purpose Corticelli stitching silk is usually employed.

No material lasts longer and looks better than a good covert cloth and for an extra garment to be worn with any kind of walking costume there is no more sensible purchase. Very manly and smart is a three-quarter length coat of this material made with a loose back fly front velvet collar and a lining to the waist of satin serge in the next shade darker.

The directors are the officers and Judge E. B. Dillon, of Columbus; K. K. McLaren, of Jersey City; C. H. Traxler, of Newark, O.; and W. W. Crawford, of Friendsville, Tenn. L. A. Rodgers, of Friendsville, is manager and general superintendent. The quarries of the company are located near Friendsville, Tenn., 20 miles from Knoxville, on the A. K. and N. railroad, a branch of the L. and N.

The company has two tracts of land, one containing 228 acres, and the other 180 acres. They have just commenced to develop and were the property and the first marble quarried there will be shipped next week. There are eight colors of variegated marble found in great quantities and the only black marble ever found in quantity in this country comes from the company's land. Herebefore the most of the black marble used in this country was imported from Germany or Italy, but this new company has a jet black marble that polishes like ebony, stands an extreme pressure and is not affected in any way by climatic conditions. The marble is found in strata that are from 18 to 25 feet thick and blocks 20 by 20 are quarried there. The company is capitalized at $500,000.
